Freetown- 8th July, 2021

Fifteen brand new laptops from the Irish Aid/United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) were presented to the Human Rights Commission as part of the ongoing support to the Commission.

The Chairperson of the Commission, Patricia Narsu Ndanema expressed gratitude for the continued support as she recalled the 2020 reassessment of its logistics base where the absence of laptops was identified as a serious constraint.

UNDP Team Lead for Governance, Kadie Jumu-Peters said, "The UNDP is here to serve and will support the work of the Commission in whatever way we can for the protection and promotion of human rights".

On behalf of the top management at UNDP, she said they are ready to ensure that their plans for 2021 are implemented and look forward to delivery on the part of the Commission.
